Financial Aid 1.888.412.2163

You may be surprised that getting a pilot's license is not as expensive as you might think. Your goals are attainable with Jet Access Flight Training's acceptance of financial aid from many programs.

Financial Aid Through University

Training with our university affiliates, such as Vincennes University or Quincy University, provides access to several conventional student loan options.

AOPA Flight Training Funds | www.AOPA.org

The AOPA Flight Training Funds account allows you the flexibility to structure your training to fit your needs. Use the account to pay for a rating or certificate program or just to get the additional hours you need to feel safe and comfortable in your aircraft. You can use your account to pay for aircraft rental, instructor fees, books, and supplies, or anything else to make your training successful. The choice is yours, and you control how and where you use your account.

Financial Institutions

We accept financial aid from nearly any banking institution. We do not force you to use a particular bank like other schools might. You can shop around and find what is best for you. Training through one of our university or collegiate affiliates may allow eligibility for federal subsidized education loans. We are also GI Bill VA approved. Consult your local VA financial aid office for information on how to apply your earned benefits to our flight training. Funding for Jet Access Flight Training Fast-Track Commercial Program is available through Meritize and Stratus Financial.

Pay as You Go

Flight students pay for the aircraft rental and the flight instructor's time after each flight lesson. We accept credit cards, cash, or check.

Flight Training Tips 1.888.412.2163

Tips to Earning Your Pilot License

- Strive to fly 2-3 times per week. This will keep training fresh and prevent reviewing past lessons.
- Be prepared. Review material before your flight lesson. If you plan on performing ground reference maneuvers during your next lesson, read up on them beforehand. Not only will you perform the maneuver better, but you will also be able to retain new information faster.
- Get involved. Volunteer for events at your airport or hang around after your lesson and talk to other pilots. You are bound to learn something.
- Ask questions. Pilots love to talk and show off their knowledge, so ask away!
- Immerse yourself. In addition to your textbooks and manuals, take the time to read and expose yourself to anything aviation related. Search the web and read articles in areas of interest.
- Most importantly—HAVE FUN!

Q: What part 141 courses do you offer?

We are FAA part 141 approved for Private Pilot flight and ground, Instrument flight and ground, Commercial flight and ground, and Instructor flight training.

Q: Do I have to be enrolled in the commercial program?

No. We teach aviation to share our passion and grow our community. Everyone is welcome, especially people who want to fly just for fun to take their family and friends on flights, get an exciting twist on vacations, discover the adventure of cross-country aviation, etc. All our students share the quality of service that our commercial school and community provides, whether training for fun or a career. Contact us with your goals and we can tailor your training to your desires.

You do not need a degree. However, training through our university affiliates can help students attain low interest loans and restricted ATP minimums. A degree can also be useful with other opportunities in the diverse aviation employment market.

Q: Does Jet Access Flight Training accept GI Bill benefits?

Yes. We are VA approved for the GI Bill benefits through Vincennes University. Please consult your local VA financial aid office for details on how to get your approval with them to begin training with us.

Q: Shouldn't I be going to a big state school?

Training from a private institution versus a state school often looks the same on a resume to a potential pilot employer. Airlines and similar businesses want to see flight hour experience and ratings. Training with us provides a higher level of customer service at substantially less cost and time. Our training can be tailored to our student's needs and be completed as fast as the student is able. This allows our graduates to find employment and hold their airline seniority number much sooner than big state schools.

Q: How do I start?

Starting is quick and easy. We want to help you make sure flight training is right for you, so it is recommended to quickly schedule just one lesson or discovery flight, so you can experience what flight training is like and meet our professional instructors to find valuable answers to your questions.
